Dear International Scholars,

Welcome to National Taiwan University!

Each year, a large number of faculty, researchers and visiting scholars join the NTU community from abroad. Your presence is an important dimension of our university and it adds new possibilities to our campus.

Taiwan is an island with extremely rich Chinese cultural heritage and global perspectives. Geographically, it is roughly the size of Switzerland. For centuries, Taiwan has been an important node on maritime routes connecting North Asia, South-East Asia and North America. Today, Taiwan is a dynamic island at the center of the Asia-Pacific region’s strongest economies. The world’s second largest economy, China, is located right across the Taiwan Strait; Japan, the third biggest, is also a close neighbor. Taiwan is a multi-faceted country, full of opportunities for you to make the most of your East-Asian experience.

During your visit to NTU, you will have the chance to explore and experience the culture, society, and people of Taiwan. This handbook, designed especially for international scholars like you, is to help you familiarize with the new environment. From immigration information to daily life tips, we have all the basic information you will need as a newcomer of Taiwan and as a new member of the NTU family. We hope you can make use of this handbook as a guide for your life in Taiwan. The Office of International Affairs and your host department will do their best to help should any problems occur.

On behalf of NTU, I would like to sincerely welcome you to become part of our international family. I hope you'll find that our university is a great place to develop your intellectual, social and personal skills, broaden your cultural interests and have fun! Please take the advantage of the rich resources we have and make the most out of your stay in Taiwan. I wish you a rewarding and enjoyable experience at NTU.

Preparing for Arrival
Work Permit

A work permit for foreign professionals allows you to accept paid employment in Taiwan and is the first legal document you need to apply for. As long as a work contract is signed with NTU, you will receive a permit from the Council of Labor Affairs (CLA) through the University. With the permit you can apply for Visa at the Taiwan representative office in your country (If you are already in Taiwan, you should apply for a change of visa at the Bureau of Consular Affairs after you receive the work permit). In general, a work permit issued to foreign professionals is valid for up to three years. However, a shorter permit will be issued to holders of a contract for a shorter period of employment.

Visa

Visa Types

You must apply for a valid visa (Visitor Visa or Resident Visa) in your country of residence BEFORE entering Taiwan. If you are a short-term visiting scholar and intend to stay in Taiwan for less than six months, a Visitor Visa will suffice. If you are a full-time faculty of NTU or intend to stay in Taiwan for more than six months, you need a Resident Visa.

Please contact the Ministry of Foreign Affairs or Republic of China (ROC) Overseas Embassies (Missions) in your country for the required documents, latest information, and advice about the type of Visa you should apply for.

A list of ROC (Taiwan) Embassies can be found at http://www.boca.gov.tw/lp.asp?ctNode=125&CtUnit=72&BaseDSD=18&mp=2

WHAT TYPE OF VISA DO YOU NEED?

Visitor Visa:

- If you are a short-term visiting scholar and intend to stay in Taiwan for less than six months, a Visitor Visa will suffice.

- It is strongly advised to apply for a multiple-entry Visitor Visa if you plan to travel internationally during your stay. It is not possible to change a single-entry to a multiple-entry Visitor Visa once you are in Taiwan.

- Visitor Visa holders are permitted to stay for 60 or 90 days, you may apply at local service centers of the National Immigration Agency for an extension (max. 90-120 days) within 15 days before the current visa expires.

Resident Visa:

- If you are a visiting scholar who intends to stay in Taiwan for more than 180 days, you should apply for the Resident Visa. After you entered Taiwan with your Resident Visa, you should change your Visa to an Alien Resident Certificate (ARC; see the ARC section below).

- If you originally enter on a Visitor Visa but will stay for more than 180 days, you must change to a Resident Visa at the Bureau of Consular Affairs, Ministry of Foreign Affairs before the Visitor Visa expiration date (See Visa Status Changes section below).

Apply for an “Alien Resident Certificate” (ARC) and re-entry permit at local service centers of the National Immigration Agency

Request city/country police headquarters to extend the validity of ARC and re-entry permit before they expire
What are the benefits of ARC?

1. One may reside in Taiwan legally.
2. Along with the ARC, upon request, a re-entry permit can be issued to allow one to re-enter Taiwan within the validation date.
3. One may open a savings account (and obtain an ATM card) in Chunghwa Post Office and banks.
5. One may join the National Health Insurance (NHI) Program.

When should you apply for the ARC? What documents will be needed?

Once you have been granted a Resident Visa, you should apply for an ARC within 15 days upon entering the country (If you changed your Visitor Visa to a Resident Visa, you should apply for an ARC within 15 days after you’ve obtained your Resident Visa).

An ARC may be valid for up to three years depending on your employment condition. ARC holders are required to carry their ARC with them all the time. Please extend your ARC at least 15 days before the expiration date. The bearer of an expired ARC faces a fine and possible deportation.

Reminder

1. A work permit or ARC is not required for short term visiting scholars (under 183 days – in that case, a Visitor Visa should suffice). If you intend to stay for more than 183 days in Taiwan, you will need to apply for a Resident Visa.
2. Alien residents who wish to leave Taiwan should carry with them their passports, valid ARCs or re-entry permits for exit verification at airports or ports.
3. Alien residents who wish to re-enter Taiwan after departing must apply for a re-entry permit prior to their departure.

Visa Status Change or Extension of Visa

Tip: Consultation available through the Public Service Hotline (02)2380-5678. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs provides basic consultation services for matters involving foreign affairs, passport applications, visas for foreigners, document notarization and related areas.

Making a Visa Status change or an extension of your visa occurs after you are in Taiwan. You may need to extend your Visitor Visa, get an ROC ID number or change your Visitor Visa to a Resident Visa. If you entered Taiwan with a Resident Visa, you need to get an ARC within 15 days of your arrival (see the previous section Alien Resident Certificate ARC at p. 7.)

Insurance

International scholars who possess an ARC are required to enroll in the National Health Insurance (NHI) program. If you are a short-term visiting scholar with a Visitor Visa and unable to present documents for enrolling in the NHI, you may enroll in the insurance programs that NTU provides.

NTU Insurance Policy

NTU has an agreement with two insurance companies to provide coverage for visiting scholars. Your host department will assist you in finding the right policy for you.

The policy underwritten by Ding-hou Insurance is suitable for long-term visiting scholars and their dependents holding ARCs. The policy underwritten by Nan-shan Insurance is designed for short-term visiting scholars and their dependents. For more information about the two policies, please check the insurance section on the OIA website:

National Health Insurance (NHI) Program

All Taiwanese residents are obliged to apply for the National Health Insurance (NHI). Under the insurance system, patients benefit from receiving quality treatment with a lower fee in hospitals or clinics authorized by the NHI. However, not every medical procedure is covered by the plan.

NHI Eligibility

- Foreign employee: A foreign employee can join the NHI immediately after he/she has obtained the ARC.
- Foreign visitors: Foreign visitors with a valid ARC and have resided in Taiwan for more than 4 months are entitled/required to enroll in the NHI Program in Taiwan. During the first four months, it is advisable to purchase other insurance plans first.

Application Procedure

For Visiting Scholars:
Please bring your application form (to be downloaded here: http://www.personnel.ntu.edu.tw/table4/43013.doc) and NTU Proof of Employment or your Work Contract to Section FOUR in the NTU Personnel Department.

Although you can get a picture-less NHI ID, you are strongly advised to obtain a photo NHI IC card. Please send your application and your documents to local NHI offices via mail or file your application at the nearest NHI offices.

If your NHI Card is lost, bring your ARC and 200 NTD to the nearest NHI office to apply for a replacement card. The process will take about an hour, so you can pick up your new card the same day.

For detailed information on National Health Insurance (NHI), please visit the website of Bureau of National Health Insurance:

NTU ID

With your NTU ID, you can have access to the library, have access to your department building during non-office hours, be qualified to sign up for gym membership at our sports gym, etc. In addition, the card also serves as an EasyCard that allows you to take public transportation in Taipei (For more information about EasyCard, please see “Public Transportation” under the chapter “Living in Taiwan” on p.30).

You can apply for an NTU ID by filling out your personal information form (see p.13). We will process your request and the ID card should be ready within 7 business days.

Living in Taiwan
About Taiwan

The island of Taiwan, with a total land area of approximately 36,000 square kilometers, lies off the coast of southeastern Asia. With abundant natural resources that make perfect habitat for over 18,000 species of wildlife, this tropical island was called Ilha Formosa by early Portuguese explorers. Taiwan is also well-known for its economic dynamism and technological expertise and has top-notch performances in technology industries like semi-conductors, computers, LCD, LED, etc. With influence from various cultures such as Chinese, Japanese, Western, and Southeast Asian, Taiwan has a diverse population that speaks many different languages and share unique traditional customs.

Climate

The island of Taiwan can be divided into three distinct climate zones: the northern and eastern part, the central mountains, and the southwest coast. Spring and autumn are the most pleasant seasons in Taiwan, when the temperature is cool and comfortable. The monsoon ("plum rain") season begins in May and signals consecutive rainy days. In winter, the northern and eastern parts are normally cold (below 15°C) with abundant rain. On the other hand, the central region and the southwest are usually cool or even sunny. Occasionally there may be snow in the central mountains in altitudes above 2,500 meters. Summer in Taiwan is hot and humid, with temperature hovering above 30°C and frequent afternoon thunderstorms.

Time Zone

Taiwan is eight hours ahead of GMT, and shares the same time zone with Beijing, Hong Kong, and Singapore.

eg) 8:00 p.m. in Taiwan is 12:00 a.m. noon in London (GMT).

Measuring System

In general, Taiwan uses the metric system for measurements. In some cases though, several traditional Taiwanese measuring units are still being used. You can refer to the conversion table at Appendix 5 to get an idea of the traditional units.

Household Affairs and Family Support

Caring for the Environment

The government and people of Taiwan make a lot of effort in protecting the environment by reducing waste and conserving energy. When eating out, it is encouraged that you should bring your own utensils instead of using disposable utensils at the restaurant. Also, you should bring your own bag for groceries as a lot of the stores and supermarkets charge for shopping bags according to the government’s regulations to reduce waste.

Recycling

Taiwan has a garbage disposal policy that has been practiced for many years. Waste should be separated into three categories: recyclable garbage, kitchen waste, and ordinary garbage.

Recyclable garbage and kitchen waste will both be recycled. Recyclable garbage includes paper, metal, glass, plastic, dry batteries, motorized vehicles (automobiles and motor scooters), tires, lead-acid batteries, electrical apparatus, CDs, light sources and cell phones. Kitchen waste includes raw and cooked foods and other organic wastes. These two kinds of garbage should be disposed in individual bags.

Before you take out your garbage, please classify them first and deliver the garbage to the designated location at the scheduled time. Different areas have different regulations regarding the classification of garbage. Failure to dispose garbage correctly can result in a fine from $1,200 NTD to $6,000 NTD. For more information and for garbage collection times and locations, contact your local cleaning squad or environmental protection bureau, or call the recycling information line.

Cultural Tips

We hope you can make the most out of your visit to NTU, so we don't want cultural adjustment difficulties to be in your way. Upon arrival, it might be a little challenging to fit into the new environment, so here we listed a few tips that might be helpful to get you started with adjusting to the Taiwanese culture and society that you’re unfamiliar with.

Safety
Taiwan is one of the safest places on earth, and Taipei is one of the safest capital cities in the world along with the capitals of Iceland, Denmark or New Zealand. It is still safe to go out at night. Nevertheless, you should always keep your house unit locked. Also, you have to be careful with traffic as a packed city like Taipei has a lot of vehicles on the streets.

Formal
People in Taiwan tend to be very formal and courteous in business situations. They see the status and rank of people to be very important. In most cases, when they address someone, they’ll say the family name and title, like “Professor Wang.” It is considered to be extremely rude if you just call someone by their first name (except if your hierarchy is greater than that person’s).

Gifts
People in Taiwan like to give gifts and treat others for meals. That means you're significant to them and they want to let you know that they care about you. Sometimes people can be very persistent in giving you a gift or treating you a meal. Please don't feel uneasy or intruded, as they’re just trying to be nice.

Personal Space
Since Taipei is a packed city, the comfortable zone between people is very small. You might find people around are standing too close to you. People might also walk by right beside you without saying “excuse me.” They’re not being rude; it’s just that in Taiwan, there is almost no “personal space.”

Strangers
In Taiwan, you don’t usually talk to people whom you don’t know. Saying “Hi” to strangers or starting a conversation with others on a bus is extremely uncommon. Taiwanese people also don’t have the habit of holding the door for the person behind.

At Home
In Taiwan, almost all of the houses don’t allow shoes indoors. When you are about to enter someone else’s house, remember to take off your shoes at the door.

Eating Out
If you dine in a nice restaurant with services, usually there will be a 10% required service charge to the total bill. Tipping is extremely uncommon in Taiwan, so you do not have to give any extra tips to the server in the restaurant. The only circumstance that might require tipping is when you stay in a hotel. Otherwise, tipping is not required in Taiwan.

In Class
In Taiwan, the class atmosphere is often teacher-centered with the professor lecturing and students listening and taking notes. Students may not be used to having to participate, speak up, or ask questions in class.
